

Fire Bosses Turn Down Proposal

Western Canada Firehoses Association members have rejected by a vote of 120 to 22 a proposal of the bituminous coal operators.

The agreement proposed by the operators was to have replaced an agreement which expired Sept. 20. Some concessions had been made in the new agreement which would have granted a closed shop and allowed time and a half for statutory holidays.

The main point on which the agreement was rejected was a demand for a day's work for each of the ten statutory holidays on the part of the firebosses. This demand was not met.

Negotiations were between individual operators and the association of firebosses, which is affiliated with the Trades and Labor Congress.

As a result of the ballot the association is asking for government intervention and conciliation under the Alberta and BC labor acts.

Calgary.—The Western Canada Firehoses Association, AFL, have applied for the appointment of a government conciliator to assist them in reopening negotiations with bituminous coal operators in the Crows' Nest Pass area.

Decision to apply for conciliation was taken after the membership of the union had rejected an operators' offer. The firebosses, which represents approximately 200 men employed on supervisory and safety work in the mines, are seeking holidays with pay and a premium for night shift duty.

School Students End Strike

Blairmore high school students' strike, gave the town much publicity, is now over. The students took a vote on Wednesday, Nov. 3, on whether or not they would return to their classes, which resulted in two thirds favoring the return.

The reason for this strike was said to be dirty windows, poor lighting and no heat.

A special meeting was held on Nov. 2, at which some 300 ratepayers were in attendance, where they heard many arguments.

Promise of immediate action was made by the school board and they have now installed new fluorescent lighting and are repairing different parts of the school. A new automatic stoker is being installed to provide better heat. Further steps have also been taken toward the reconditioning of proper ventilation in the school.

Board of Trade Discuss Housing

An integrated housing scheme for this town was discussed thoroughly at a regular meeting of the Blairmore Board of Trade held in the Union Hall Nov. 4. L. Shoukist of Shoukist Construction Co., Western Limited, of Calgary, outlined the scheme and replied to questions from forty board of trade members and interested citizens at the meeting.

Mr. Shoukist accepted an invitation to attend the next board of trade meeting to be held early in December, when plans for construction of twenty houses under the scheme will be discussed in more detail.

Cost of the houses, according to Mr. Shoukist, will be $6,500 each, providing the buyer owns his lot. Each house will contain two bedrooms, a bathroom, living room, kitchen, fixtures—including furnace—and a full basement. Hardwood floors would be laid.

The equity or down payment, to be made by a purchaser would be $1,200, with a monthly charge of approximately $36 over a twenty year period.

"We would not promise to do any construction this fall, the guest speaker said. "All homes would be finished and people living in them before the snow flies next year. It would take us approximately six months to build the houses."

A committee of three was appointed to investigate sites for the proposed new homes, and to ascertain the cost of the lots and their availability.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

Quite a number of friends attended a shower held in honor of Mrs. McGlynn (nee Myrtle Gilmar) on Tuesday, Nov. 2.

Upon entering the hall the bride was presented with a corsage of carnations, and was pinned to her dress by Mrs. Gagne. She was then escorted to the bride's chair to the strains of The Wedding March played by Mrs. Bert Shannon.

Whist and bingo were played during the evening, after which a dainty lunch was served.

The bride was then presented with a beautiful array of gifts for which she thanked her many friends. Special thanks went to the hostesses, Mrs. Gagne, Mrs. Crippen, Mrs. J. Anderson and Mrs. Radford.

A very special thank you went to the Ladies Auxiliary of the DESL, who presented her with a beautiful coffee table and a large living room mirror. Myrtle was the first president of the auxiliary and held the office for a year.

Legion Members Remember Fallen

Blairmores observed Remembrance Day on November 11 with a mammoth parade, an impressive service and tableaux in the Orpheum theatre, and service at the local cenotaph. Canadian Legion members some 400 strong assembled in the Legion club rooms where speeches, a banquet and entertainment lasting all afternoon marked the occasion as one that will be long remembered.

Moving off at 10:30 a.m. for the theatre, a huge parade composed of RCMP, BESL, Ladies' Auxiliary, 22nd Armoured Brigade, Bellevue Band, IODE and Cadets left their rendezvous at Blairmore's main school. Fifteen minutes later, they assembled in the Orpheum theatre to join in National Remembrance Day service.

Highlight of the theatre service was a tableau "In Flanders Fields" on stage of the theatre. Portraying an actual scene "over there," the tableau had a cenotaph arrayed with wreaths and poppies. Roll Call was made, and choral offerings by the United church choir were sung.

Glyn Rees, president of the Canadian Legion here, acted as chairman at the service. Rev. T. R. Haythorne gave the prayers and scripture reading; His Worship Mayor Enoch Williams gave the address.

Moving off after the service from in front of the theatre, the paraders and townspeople gathered for the cenotaph service. Wreaths were laid, the firing party was in attendance around the cenotaph, and The Last Post was sounded.

Legion members assembled shortly after noon at their headquarters for a banquet. Long tables lined the beautifully decorated club rooms, with the walls decorated for battles of both wars. A stage at one end served for a continuous program, while President Rees introduced guest speakers and entertainers from a microphone at the head table at the centre of the building.

W. Jalpe, vice-president of the Legion, opened the dinner and program with a toast to His Majesty the King. H. Lord followed with the Roll Call and F. J. Loke replied with the response. The Canadian Legion male choir rendered "Guide Me Oh Thou Great Jehovah," with H. Mark conducting. Rev. Haythorne said grace for the luncheon.

A welcome to members and guests was given by President Rees after the assembly had done justice to a tempting meal specially prepared by members of the Ladies Auxiliary.

S. G. Bannan introduced the speakers. During a brief speech he displayed a photograph of himself taken 34 years ago. "Our slogan then was 'From Medicine Hat to Berlin—to Establish Another British Colony,'" he said. "Today, we could not bring the white cliffs of Dover here, but we brought the House of Dover to us," he quipped.

Lieutenant-Colonel Mary Dover, O.B.E., second vice-president of the provincial command of the Canadian Legion, opened her speech by saying: "It is a tremendous honor to be here. I have never been in Blairmore before. My father used to tell me that this is the only place to live in the world—the people that live here are the finest and they are filled with the frontier spirit."

She commented on the "nice crisp air" of the Crows' Nest Pass. Reverting to her words she said: "My idea as far as the Legion is concerned turns always to the future. There are

CNP HOCKEY LEAGUE HOLD INITIAL MEETING

Joe McDougall, of Blairmore, president of the Crows' Nest Pass Hockey League, called a meeting on Sunday to discuss plans for the resumption of the Alberta-BC league for intermediate hockey.

Last year's league was comprised of teams from Kimberley, Cranbrook, Fernie, Coleman, Blairmore and Shaughnessy.

People who talk of fear and things disunited, but you do not talk of things disunited when you are in the Legion.

Speaking of the children of veterans he said: "There is that tremendous league of veterans' children that we have to look after." And speaking of home life: "What we have is great—it is ordinary greatness. Life is a simple thing, like getting up in the morning; doing an honest day's work."

Of Remembrance Day services he said: "We renew a desire that within this coming year we can accomplish something, and next year when there is a two-minute silence, we can say that we have done that and we will strive to double the effort next year."

His Worship Mayor Williams, of Blairmore, recalled that "In 1918 on November 11 it was then that he received word of the death of a brother. He had fallen on the eve of victory in the First Great War."

"I have the privilege of being one of the people in this section of the country when it was then the North West Territories. There are good people in this country because they like the country."

"I hope that we will progress along the lines of peace," he continued. "I have seen several great wars—as far as material gain, there is not very much. If we can agree and keep up our standards, the road to peace is the only way to progress."

Rev. Mr. Haythorne, in his post-luncheon speech, said he felt he was speaking on behalf of all churches in Blairmore when he said: "The men and women of the Legion have a permanent place." Regarding a world church, he said, "We can have it in our hearts. We can have it in the world."

Acting regent of the IODE, Mrs. Reginald Tonge told the gathering: "We know that the Vets appreciated the parcels that we sent them. The Crows' Nest Chapter of the IODE extends best wishes to the women's auxiliary of the Canadian Legion and wishes them success."

An interesting summary of the war in Ceylon, India, was given by Major Dover, husband of Lieut.-Col. Dover. India was entirely unprepared when war broke out. Major Dover, who had spent 22 years in India, said: "We had two aircraft for both offensive and defensive tactics."

Speaking of the Canadian Legion, he said: "There is no other organization that instills into one that enthusiasm, that wonderful feeling of welcome."

Taking part in the musical entertainment were the Male Choir, Ed's Orchestra, E. Womersley, T. Hadwell, J. Gray, R. Amatto, A. Ferrogli and E. Gushul. The program was interspersed by community singing.

The Chinese were the first to discover a practical method of paper-making by the weaving of the fibres.

To Support the Southern Route

When the Dominion-provincial conference on a Trans-Canada highway, announced some time ago by Hon. James A. McKinnon, minister of mines and resources, meets at Ottawa, British Columbia is likely to advocate that priority be given to the southern Trans-Canada route through the Crows' Nest Pass.

That is the political viewpoint coming out of Victoria, according to Vancouver newspapers, although highway officials in the BC capital are loath to discuss the problem due to the toes which may be stepped on in areas advocating the Fraser Canyon and Big Bend route in the centre and the Yellowhead route in the north.

The reason given for the southern route's popularity in official circles is that it is shorter and serves a much more heavily-populated section of the province. It would take years and many millions to construct the road through the Fraser Canyon to link up with the Kicking Horse Pass-Big Bend route, while the Hope-Princeton link is with its way to completion to tie in with the southern trans-provincial highway paralleling the Kettle Valley through Nelson, Cranbrook and on to the Crows' Nest Pass—Lethbridge Herald.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

"GOODNIGHT SWEETHEART"

Reminiscing Scenes Of An Almost Forgotten Past

By JOHNNY ROWLEY

CHARLEY FERRIS had always said "Goodnight sweetheart" to his wife the last thing before going to bed when they were first married. He had continued the practice when he was thirty... and when he was forty, and now that he was seventy-three he saw no reason for giving it up.

"Goodnight sweetheart," he murmured, standing in the dusk of the upstairs room in his daughter's house.

He didn't get into bed immediately but went and stood by the window overlooking the garden. It was hot with the heat of late summer after a scorching day and was only now, at ten o'clock, beginning to cool off. He stood there, absent, drinking in the warm glow of the moon, scarcely thinking when he caught the murmur of voices from the clump of evergreens around the small summer house.

He didn't mean to eavesdrop but the voices waited up to him on the cool evening breeze were clear and distinct. He knew at once who was there and frozen.

His granddaughter Dorothy... Dot, as she was to the family... was almost the image of his wife when they were first married. For that reason he had always thought more of her than his other grandchildren. Only today he had heard that she and Dick Albright were on the verge of breaking up. The news had bothered him for he thought a lot of them both and had been looking forward to the day when they would be married. He had continued to worry about it all day.

His hesitant offer of help had been met with refusal. "It's nothing you can do anything about, Gramps," Dot had told him. "I'll just have to work out of my own accord."

He had had to be content with that but it had continued to worry him. The voices were lower now and he could only catch a word now and then.

He heard Dick say earnestly: "But Dot, if we're to make this thing work out we've got to trust each other." Dot's reply was lost in the night air but the old man had scarcely listened for it.

His mind had gone back almost fifty years. "Did you hear that, Nancy?" he asked. "He says they've got to trust each other." He chuckled. Remember that time I told you to go to Chicago and was a day late in getting back? That was bad enough... but when you found the gloves in my valise, the ones I'd forgotten to give you, you thought I was lost for sure. It was a long time before you would trust me completely." He sobered suddenly, coming back to the present. "They're going through the same thing, Nancy," he said.

They were talking again, earnestly, and had got up and stood now just in front of the summer house where the warm glow of the moon glinted softly on the girl's hair. She was slim and tall and her hair, tumbling in soft curls was a raven black. "You know I love you," he heard her say. "I guess I always will."

He didn't hear any more for his eyes had filled and he was thinking of another garden in the moonlight and of another girl. "She's the spitiest image of you when you were twenty, Nancy," he said. "Do you remember the night I asked you to marry me?" He was lost for a few moments in contemplation. "It was a night like this," he continued finally. He meditated on the scene, his eyes half closed. "It's almost as though it were yesterday," he murmured.

As he watched the boy stepped forward and attempted to take her in his arms. For a moment she protested, but only for a moment, and with a muttered exclamation pressed her face to his.

Again the scene faded for the old man and he was seeing another scene, a scene out of his own past. Remember that night at Halbram's beach, Nancy? he whispered. "The night as was cool as this one... and the moon shining on the waves made them look all silvery. I took you in my arms..." He stared out of the window, his eyes unseeing, looking back into an almost forgotten past.

He shook his head to get rid of the image and looked again into the garden. Dick had hold of both her hands and was talking earnestly. She was looking up into his eyes and in the dim light of the moon he thought he could see a smile on her face.

They stood like that talking for several minutes and then he could see that Dick was about to leave. The fear he had forgotten in his own reminiscing returned with a cold, deadening impact. It seemed that everything must be right, but he couldn't be sure. He strained to catch what they were saying but their tones were lower now.

Then Dick kissed her again. Quickly, the old man thought. He turned to go and paused when he reached the path which led around to the front of the house. He turned for an instant and for that brief moment the old man could see his face clearly in the moonlight. "Goodnight, sweetheart," he called softly. The moon made silvery ripples on the girl's hair.

Charley Ferris straightened up, a smile on his lips. The fear he had felt all along was gone and in its place an exultation he had felt only once before... the night he had proposed to his wife!

"Did you hear that, Nancy?" he demanded. "Everything's all right. The trouble is all patched up." He turned from the window, leaving Dot standing quietly in the moonlight and he went back to his room. He paused for an instant before he got in... long enough to switch on the light and look at the picture of a dark-haired laughing girl in high-collared, long-sleeved dress which stood on his bureau.

"Goodnight, sweetheart," he whispered and then turned off the light and sank back against the pillow with a contented sigh. "Goodnight, sweetheart," he murmured once again before his eyes fell shut.

B.C. Needs More Prospectors

VANCOUVER.—British Columbia needs prospectors. The minerals are here—they need only to be uncovered, declares Frank E. Woodside, B.C. member of the Yukon Chamber of Mines, in announcing the Chamber's annual night school prospecting course.

Mr. Woodside predicts a tremendous boom in mining activity in coming years. Many who have taken the mining course in its past 30 years have made important discoveries, he says.

Subjects studied include mineralogy, geology, prospecting, staking claims, and methods of analysis, testing and development to make a prospect saleable to mining companies.

VALUE OF FRUIT CROP HIGHER AT PENTICTON

PENTICTON, B.C.—On the basis of grades, value of this year's fruit crop in the Pentiction district is on a par with other years.

The crop is less than estimated in the original survey, due to small size of fruits. However, grade for grade, the overall price is better than last year.

The American market is especially good this year for selected grades.

Contagious Smiles

The other day a woman beat me to the last "on-sale" blouse on the counter. I was furious and I turned to glare at her. Then my anger melted and I found myself grinning back at one of the warmest and friendliest smiles I have ever encountered. Her smiling face not only reconciled me to the loss of the blouse but made me feel good all day long.

A soft answer may turn away wrath but a really heart-felt smile will do even more. It can bridge the barrier of race, creed, and age. It makes the giver and the recipient happier for having experienced it. A smile is a priceless gift that costs nothing and repays a hundred-fold. It is the bait in the trap to catch the unwary male. Naughty children have used it to great effect in calming parental rage. Tardy husbands have made an impossible story entirely plausible because they knew the right time to grin.

A smile is not only a facial gesture; it is something we can do with our eyes, voice and body. It is something which can pave the way to greater happiness and success for anyone using it at the right time and with heart-felt sincerity.

The voice with a smile is the telephone's proud claim for its operators. I know a man who fell in love with a girl from hearing her voice over the phone and later married her. Yet how many of us have lifted the receiver and been instantly antagonized by the voice without a smile at the other end.

Some people can say "I'm sorry," with all the grace of a hissing cobra. They step on your toe or elbow you out of the way, and then sneer the conventional words of contrition as if they resented the very breath used to say it. We don't want mere words when our feeling have been hurt or our ribs bruised, but a look of genuine concern coupled with a smiling and humane voice.

Want a favor? Try asking for it with a smile in the voice as well as the one you place on your face. There is something about a warm, friendly voice that puts people in a receptive frame of mind. A friend of mine has used it on her husband ever since they have been married. He loves it even when he knows it will cost him money.

My children have long used a smiling face and voice to get "around" mother, but the other day my six-year-old daughter came up with a new concept of the power of a smile.

"Teacher is a lot nicer to me when I smile," she said in a voice that told of great discoveries that day.

I was delighted that she had learned that important lesson so early in life, and so painlessly. Many of us learn, if ever, the value of a smile only after we have lost something we wanted, like a job, or a boy-friend, or a favor.

A successful business man once told me: "I never hire a grouchy appearing person or one with a cement-mixer voice. I have found that one cranky worker can upset a whole assembly line."—Joan Hager in the Family Herald and Weekly Star.

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

by

"You've Gotta Accentuate the Positive" says the popular song of yesteryear. And it's true!

The men and women who have accomplished big things in science, art, business, education, political and military affairs have all been positive thinkers. They had to be! Otherwise risks, mistakes, obstacles and laziness would have stopped them.

A barber once told me he wanted to open his own shop. But he never got around to it. Fear of failure held him back.

Negative thinking is likewise typical of all the people who are habitual fault-finders, indecisive, lazy, defeatist and over-cautious. They act as brakes against the world's progress.

Yes, we need more folks who accentuate the positive. And they themselves are happier, more successful in their work and enjoy better relationships with others!

An important positive force for national progress is the millions of dollars invested by life insurance companies, on behalf of policyholders, in public works and industries which promote higher standards of living for all.

HYDRAULIC RAMS DO THE WORK

HYDRAULIC RAMS are an excellent method of getting a good water supply for those who have water in such a location that they can use one.

We are publishing herewith drawings of three ways of installing a hydraulic ram. The important thing in the installation of a ram is to have the drive pipe of the correct length for the installation in question. In the upper drawing of the three installations pictured, the slope between the spring and the ram is sufficiently short that the drive pipe can be connected directly to the water supply. In the second and third pictures it is necessary to install a stand pipe or a supply box between the ram and the spring in order to secure the correct length of drive pipe for the installation in question.

These are definite rules in connection with the length of the drive pipe of a hydraulic ram which must be followed if the installation is to be a success. The drive pipe of a ram must be not less than 8 to 10 times the vertical height between the level of the water in the supply and the level at which the drive pipe enters the ram. This height may be described as the working head or fall of the drive pipe. The minimum head or fall under which a ram will work satisfactorily is about 2½ feet; more than this, however, is better.

These diagrams show three methods of arranging hydraulic rams under different conditions. Where the distance from the source of water to the location of the ram is greater than the required length of the drive pipe, a supply box or stand pipe must be provided.

GERMAN SCHOOL CHILDREN TO STUDY IN BRITAIN

Last week a party of 18 girls and 23 boys left the British zone of Germany for a six months visit to Britain. These German children, who are all between 10 and 18, will spend the autumn term, Christmas holidays and spring term as the guests and pupils of various State and public schools in Britain. The scheme is sponsored by the Education Branch of the British Control Commission in Germany and is carried out with the co-operation of Britain's Educational Interchange Council. Seventy German secondary school children have already been brought over this year to study in Britain for periods of up to six months.

Defines Six Stages Of Drunkenness

TORONTO. — Alcohol is a "brain poison", not a stimulant, Dr. C. W. Muehlberger, Lansing, Mich., toxicologist, said.

In an address to legal, medical and police experts he outlined six stages of drunkenness: Dry and decent, dejected, the number of gallons per minute required to operate each size and the number of gallons the ram will deliver on different heights of vertical lift. It is obvious, of course, that the higher the vertical lift the less water can be delivered per minute. It is always advisable to install a ram small enough to operate when the water level is at its lowest point during the year. This is necessary in order to have a surplus of water at all times.

Hydraulic rams should be installed in a pit deep enough to protect them from frost and there must be a waste drain from the pit to a ditch or other low ground into which the water will always have an outlet. Sometimes a small building is put up over the pit, which, of course, makes the ram accessible at all times, particularly in winter.

When properly installed and in places suited for its use the hydraulic ram is a cheap and very dependable method of pumping water. It can be used to pump water into elevated tanks from which the water is piped to faucets in house and barn as in any gravity operated water system, or it can be used to pump against an air pressure tank, though in this case escape valve is necessary to permit water to escape when the tank is full. The most convenient installation for hydraulic rams is always the gravity tank system. If it is necessary, of course, to have an overflow pipe running from near the top of the storage tank to some dependable waste drain which will carry waste water to some place where it will not be a nuisance.

Prairie Fiesta And A Hayride

(By Grace Lockhart, in Vancouver Province)

IT WONDER if they still burn the straw stacks on the prairie? When threshing is all over and the grain has been sold or stored? And if they do, do they make a sort of fiesta of it as we used to do?

Of course with our modern scientific methods of making this out of that, I may be wearing last year's straw stack on my back for all I know. Or in my notions!

I may not have been born 40 years too soon, but I used to think that burning an awful waste, but what could you do? True, the range cattle used to eat some of it in the winter when the snow was too deep for feeding. Or they could find shelter in the lee of the big stacks, once they had eaten up spaces big enough to hold them.

These cattle were not to be confused with the stock that were comfortably fed and housed all winter. Milch cows and fancy heifers and teacher's pets generally, or some puny animal that couldn't take it. But the biggest part of the herd stayed out all winter. They lived on the fat of the land all summer in the hay stacks and the rolling hills that were the Moose Mountains.

After the first blizzard had swept the stubble land and the summer fallow, drifting the snow into the coulees, and wiping out the trails, those cattle knew where to find shelter.

They could burrow out caves in the straw stacks and crowd in together, almost out of sight. When they were out in the open fields, they might not be on the scratching terms, but calamity brought them together. They got along.

We lived a couple of miles from the new little town, which was beginning to make its presence felt throughout the countryside. Already fences of barbed wire were being strung along on willow pickets, although we used to cap the pickets with buffalo skulls in case the cattle strayed. But when the threshing was over, our place was the natural setting for the straw burning party. Did always picket out the stacks he wanted for the cattle and we would burn the rest.

I used to issue a general invitation to teen age pals to town. I might have been Eliza Maxwell, so closely did I follow the general motif for the party. I even collected my guests in the hay rack.

It was better to have the party in the lark of the moon because the burning stacks gave a more "lovely light". We used to pretend we were Indians and pow wow around the dance, but the stubble hampered our blancing somewhat.

Sometimes we had our party in a harvest moon. Away beyond the bleached fields we could see the faint outlines of the Moose Mountains and the tiny, glimmering pinpoints of the lights in the towns. Of course there was always the great canopy of stars. Nature used indeed to make our burning seem puny on such a night, but it was fun anyway.

When the last stack was burned we would go home and have a good feed. Not hot dogs—we had never heard of them. It was more likely to be sandwiches and cake and lots of pie, with fresh outermilk on the side. Sometimes we even had a barrel of apples, if any shipments had come in from Ontario.

When the party was over, we'd drive our guests back to town. The fires would have burned low and the stars come back into their own. Down where the trail dipped down to the coulee, it would be cold with the first hint of frost.

KITCHEN MEDITATIONS

Hallowe'en!

By JANE DALE

Owls in the tree-tops; cats upon the wall. Don't you know it's Hallowe'en? Aren't you scared at all? Witches on their broomsticks, riding through the sky. Aren't you scared at Hallowe'en? When ghosts go floating by? Mother says the witches, ghosts and everything. Are a lot of fairy tales. That Hallowe'en does bring. Apples in a long row; games and games and devilish, dizzy and devious. Jack-o'-lanterns grinning. When the lights are gone. Are so nice, not scary, and I love them all. But I like owls and witches And black cats on the wall. Though they make me scary; make me shriek with fright, I would hate to miss them On this Hallowe'en night!

British Agriculture

IN BRITAIN'S STRUGGLE FOR economic recovery emphasis has been placed on the urgent need for increasing the production of food and manufactured goods, with the object of exporting as much as possible, and decreasing imports. In a report presented a short time ago to the British House of Commons by the Minister of Agriculture, Mr. Williams, some interesting facts were made public regarding recent advances in food production in that country. It was estimated that nearly 500,000 more acres of land were devoted to food production this year than in 1947, and that next year it is hoped that more than 10,000,000 acres will be under cultivation. Of this acreage, it is expected that 2,540,000 will be used for wheat, 1,000,000 for potatoes, 392,000 for sugar beets and 200,000 for linseed.

Standards For Poultry Raised

It is also hoped that during the next year live-stock production will be considerably increased. Poultry production, the report showed, had expanded rapidly, with an increase of 85 per cent. or more than 10,000,000 hens more than in the previous year. Official poultry returns issued this summer, showed that there were at that time over 44,378,000 hens which were expected to increase egg production by 670,000,000 during the present year. The British Ministry of Agriculture has recently introduced new methods of increasing egg production by improving breeds and assisting farmers in various ways to maintain high standards of health among their flocks and to obtain maximum egg production throughout the year.

Help To Bring About Recovery

Milk production has also been increased. It is hoped that 500,000 more calves will be produced next year, and that there will be improvement in the quality of dairy herds. By improving breeds it is estimated that there would be a yearly increase of from 50 to 100 gallons of milk from each cow, and also an increase in the amount of butter fat contained in the milk. All these facts indicate the part which agriculture is playing in Britain's effort to bring about economic recovery. Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who visited Canada recently, expressed optimism over the progress which is being made in this effort, and said that the British people have reason to be very hopeful of its success. It is apparent that the British farmers are doing their part in increasing the output of food and other agricultural products to meet the needs of the country during this critical period.

Blackberries Blamed For Polio Contact

VICTORIA.—Blackberries growing on a vacant lot, and eaten by the sufferers, may be the contact for two Oak Bay Elementary School pupils suffering from poliomyelitis, municipal council has been informed. The lot was burned off immediately and the whole area sprayed with DDT.

In Vancouver, Dr. Stewart Murray, city medical health officer, said such a contact was a possibility, but only a remote one. The disease might be transmitted by flies he said, but is much more likely to be transmitted direct from a polio carrier.

SNARE RIVER HYDRO PLANT SUPPLYING YELLOWKNIFE

EDMONTON.—Power now is surging over 80-mile transmission lines of the Snare River hydro plant to Yellowknife supplying 8,000 additional horsepower to Giant Yellowknife and the northern mining town. The unit which has taken about two years to construct, is the first of several generating plants the government plans to install, eventually for a total output of 25,000 h.p. The power, from the new plants will serve the gold mines in Yellowknife and also residents of the town.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

Wife: "Women are not very strong physically."
Hubby: "Perhaps not; but they can put the cap on a fruit jar so that it takes a man 20 minutes to take it off."

The village milkman bought a horse for the morning round. It was not exactly a thoroughbred, but it had four legs.
One day he took his bargain to the blacksmith to have him shod. The smith regarded the weary-looking animal critically, paying particular attention to his lean body and spindly legs.
"You ought to have a horse there some day," he said at length. "If we've got the scaffolding up."

"There was a crowd at the town hall last night," said the oldest inhabitant to his wife.
"Something special on?" asked his better half.
"Oh, yes! It was burned down," was the reply.

A visitor to the Capitol was accompanied by his small son. The little boy watched from the gallery when the House came to order.
"Why did the minister pray for all those men, Pop?"
"He didn't. He looked them over and prayed for the country."

Printer's error: "Judge Bentley, one of our most eligible bachelors, is retiring from politics. Hale, heavily and 55, the judge says he wants a little peace and quiet."

We like the story about the Scotsman who was a man of few words. He quarreled with his wife one morning, left the house and did not return for 12 years. When he came back, he walked in quite calmly as though nothing unusual had happened.
"And where might you have been, Sandy Macpherson?" asked his wife.
"Out!" came the reply.

Wife to husband: "You'd better get up and go see why the baby's not crying."

He was one of those fathers who believed in trying to answer any questions put by his son. So he did his best when the youngster asked:
"What are ancestors, daddy?"
"Well, my boy," he replied, "I'm one of your ancestors, and your grandfather is another."

A puzzled frown marred the childish brow.
"Then, daddy, why do people brag about them?"

Bird Changed Sex, Reaches Ripe Age

VANCOUVER.—Goo-Goo, a bi-sexual mallard that wanted to see how the other half lived, now is rated a centenarian.
At the ripe old age of 13, the pet of Mr. and Mrs. William Lamontaine is the equivalent of a human well past the century mark.
About 10 years ago Goo-Goo eschewed the mundane female life of egg-laying, at which she was no amateur, and began to change to a quacking, gall-plumaged drake. Mrs. Lamontaine's suspicions of the chameleon process were confirmed by a game warden.
The bird had achieved a complete change of sex.
Now slightly lame and too heavy to fly, Goo-Goo lives a quiet retired life, but still looks and acts like any well-dressed drake.

Fuel Briquettes Made From Straw And Sawdust

WINNIPEG.—Fuel briquettes can now be made out of straw and sawdust without the use of a "binder," R. A. Sara, managing secretary of the industrial development board, told a meeting of the Manitoba Electrical association here.
Exhibiting samples of the straw and sawdust briquettes, he said they had the same heat value per pound as lignite coal.
"A machine has been patented," he told the meeting, "that compresses loose straw and sawdust into briquettes with the air of heat, and the portable machine will be capable of processing 5.4 to 22.4 tons of straw every eight hours, depending on the size of briquettes."
Speaking of new edible and inedible uses of farm products, Mr. Sara told of the growing importance of the oil seed processing industry in Canada.
Canada has 13 oil extraction plants, of which three are in Manitoba, Mr. Sara said, and predicted the rapid expansion of these plants to a position where Canada's annual import of 170,000,000 pounds of vegetable oils will be greatly reduced.
Some butterflies, like flowers, have fragrance. These smell of sweet grass, jasmine, spring, mignonette, orange blossoms of balsam.

THIS IS ONE WAY TO CATCH THIEF

DETROIT.—Walter Baker, 34, will spend the next 90 days in jail because of carelessness.
He failed to notice when he took $45 worth of camera equipment from an automobile that two Bell Telephone men were on a pole 30 feet above watching every move.

One of them, Ralph Banner, plugged in his hand telephone and notified his company which called police.

Two Highways Likley Plan for Alberta

Hon. D. B. MacMillan, provincial minister of public works, has predicted that two branches of the Trans-Canada Highway will eventually cross Alberta. The main highway would be divided into two branches when it reached Alberta, one route passing through Edmonton and the other passing south through the Crow's Nest Pass.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Calgary branch of the Alberta Motor Association at the Palliser hotel, he said Ontario was holding up the construction of the new trans-continental highway because "it was more interested in north-south highways, running into the U.S."

Although Alberta had spent $13,700,000 this year on provincial roads, the problem of inadequate roads would always face the government. "The lands of the province are better suited for cultivation than for building roads," he said. "I think we would rather have rich farm lands than areas of gravel and stone which would provide road building materials."

He said much of Alberta's road building program had been held up by a steel shortage for bridge construction, but supplies of steel were expected to improve next year.

Speaking of the provincial government's oil extraction plant at Bitumont, 250 air miles northwest of Edmonton, he said that the possibilities of producing oil from the sands had been proved, but whether oil could be

First Aid Hints for . . .DISLOCATIONS:

A dislocation is the displacement of one or more of the bones of a joint. The joints most frequently dislocated are those of the shoulder, elbow, thumb, fingers and lower jaw.

SIGNS AND SYMPTOMS:

1. Pain of a severe sickening character at or near the joint.
2. Loss of power of the joint.
3. Fixity of the joint. The limb cannot be moved at the joint either by the patient or by the First-Aider.
4. Deformity of the limb. The limb assumes an unnatural position, and is mis-shapen at the joint.
5. Swelling about the joint.

TREATMENT:MAKE NO ATTEMPT TO REDUCE A DISLOCATION

1. Steady and support the limb in the position which gives most ease to the patient, using padding where necessary in order to lessen the effects of jolting during transport.
2. Rest patient on a couch or bed in the position which gives most ease.
3. If the pain is severe, expose the injured part and apply a cold compress.
4. When cold ceases to give comfort, apply a hot compress.

BRUISES:

A blow anywhere on the surface of the body may cause extensive capillary hemorrhage beneath the skin, without breaking it—a "black eye" is an instance. The injury is accompanied by discoloration and swelling.

TREATMENT:

Apply pieces of lint soaked in equal parts of spirits and water, or a cold compress.

Major L. R. Lipsett, KC, chairman of the board of directors, said that the Calgary branch of the AMA had increased its membership ten per cent this year, and now had 11,963 members. The Edmonton branch now had 16,684 members and the Lethbridge branch 2,879.

Approximately 63 per cent of the population of Calgary and district now belonged to the AMA, the highest percentage of membership of any district in Alberta. Although the Edmonton district covers a larger area than Calgary, its AMA membership is only 6 per cent of the population.

There were 37,210 car licenses distributed in the Calgary district this year and of these license-holders, 7,492, or 20.1 per cent, were members of the motor association—Calgary Herald.

WHAT PRICE DEMOCRACY?

Democracy is without price . . . no one can ever take it for granted or assume it is paid for in full. It is an inheritance we are duty bound to pass on . . . not only to the next generation, but to our fellow men everywhere who have yet to enjoy its full benefits.

Democracy grew from a great ideal . . . that all men are born free and equal and are deserving of the same privileges. It can live on only if we constantly strive to fulfill this ideal and protect the priceless freedoms won.

Moderation is one of the chief safeguards of democracy. By being moderate in our thinking, in our actions, and in our pleasures, we are living democratically.

As The House of Seagram has so often stated, by being moderate in all things we are acting for the common good.
